DOHA, Qatar — The Lionel Messi-Diego Maradona debate has never been all that rational. It has reappeared ahead of Sunday's 2024 World Cup final, with Messi one step away from clearing the hurdle that Maradona memorably did in 1986. And if the debate were a rational one, the current framing would be this: Messi could settle it once and for all with a win over France, because, for now, for at least one more day, a World Cup title is the lone accolade that Maradona had and Messi still doesn't.

In every single other category, the comparisons are borderline absurd. Messi could finish his career with three times as many goals as Maradona and four times as many trophies. Some of those gulfs are products of era and opportunity, but Messi has essentially replicated Maradona's fleeting peak and sustained it over 15 stunning years. He is peerless.

Yet there are fans, especially older Argentines, who will argue that Messi won't — and can't — ever match their original soccer God.

Because the debate has always been influenced by who Maradona was and who Messi is, and what they represent, not solely by what they've done.

Maradona was a son of the barrios, a kid from Argentina's suffocating slums who outran poverty toward greatness. He was flawed, terribly flawed, and struggled with a drug addiction that ultimately derailed his career — but millions of Argentines identified with the struggle. When he won it, temporarily, and lifted his countrymen with him to World Cup glory, they deified him.

A good rule of thumb is three everyday bras — think one on your body, one in the drawer ready to wear, and one in the wash. We recommend: Two in a neutral or skin tone shade, like Mocha or Taupe. At least one darker color, like Black or Espresso, for outfit variety.
